

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and system for dynamically building at least part of an application is disclosed. The building in some embodiments includes the provision of new parts of an application. A blueprint document includes at least one specification for building at least part of an application. In certain embodiments, the blueprint document is received via a network.. Receiving the document replaces the need to transfer an executable file of the application.